Under Congressional Order

Penn Central Trains Rolling Again

United Press International
Penn Central trainmen went back to work under congressional order early today, ending for at least 90 days a strike of the nation's largest railroad.

President Nixon signed the back-to-work measure at 6 a.m. EST about 13 hours after Congress rammed through the legislation, according to Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren.

But even before Nixon put his signature on the bill, union and management began restoring service. Both sides in the dispute predicted that commuter and shipping services in the populous Northeast would be near normal this morning.

After Congress approved the order Thursday evening, the bill was flown to the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif., where Nixon went for a 12-day visit.

Earlier, White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told reporters that the trains would begin running again "as soon as the men can report."

Penn Central Transportation Co. president William H. Moore said the line expected "to resume passenger operations, both Amtrak intercity service and commuter service, on a regular schedule today."

Penn Central expected "close to normal" New York City commuter service today. Amtrak, the semi-government corporation which manages intercity rail service, also said operations should be back to normal early today.

The United Transportation Union in Cleveland said it put out word to return to work when Congress passed the bill.

"The word is out and our people have indicated they will have commuter service around New York and Philadelphia operating by the morning rush hour," a union spokesman said.

The bill, passed by Congress before adjourning for 10 days, forbids work stoppage for 90 days, requires the executive branch to move to achieve a permanent settlement and meanwhile prohibits Penn Central from implementing plans to reduce the size of freight train crews from four to three men.

The back-to-work order was a victory of sorts for the union, which now is assured it will continue working under its old work rules for at least 90 days. But Penn Central management was delayed in receiving benefits of the attrition-style reduction in work force, which it estimated would amount to 5,700 to 6,000 men and would save $39 million a year by 1979.

The year-long dispute, which had exhausted all the back-to-work provisions of the Railway Labor Act, came to a head at 12:01 a.m. Thursday when a 30-day cooling off period negotiated by Labor Secretary Peter Brennan ended and Penn Central management put new crew rules into effect.

The nation's largest railroad was silent by dawn, with thousands of freight cars stuck in yards and 20,000 commuters looking for other means of getting to work in New York, Philadelphia, Newark, Boston and other East Coast cities.

Some measure of inconvenience was experienced over all of Penn Central's lines which stretch from the East Coast to Chicago and St. Louis and Canada to Kentucky.

Congress ordered the Secretary of Labor to make recommendations for settling the crew-size dispute 30 days before the expiration of the 90-day no-strike period, which would end at 12:01 a.m. May 9.

Congress also ordered the Transportation Department to report within 45 days on a plan for the "preservation of essential rail services" in the Northeast, and it thus appeared the strike might result in major changes in eastern railroading.

144 U.S. Prisoners To Be Freed Sunday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The survey team to go to Quan Loi, Viet Cong and North Vietnam a village about 65 miles north have agreed to release an of Saigon near the Cambodian estimated 144 prisoners of war border, to survey the South Sunday, the Pentagon said Vietnam release site.

A Defense Department spokesman, Jerry W. Friedheim, said the word was given to U.S. officials today at a meeting of the four-party Joint Military Commission in Saigon.

Friedheim said some of those to be released in North Vietnam would be sick or wounded.

The release will include 27 captives held in South Vietnam, Friedheim said, and one-fourth of those held in North Vietnam. He said this would mean approximately 117 should be released in the North.

Friedheim said Viet Cong officials at the four-party commission had cleared a U.S.

He said the North Vietnamese would allow an 18-man reception team to land in Hanoi three hours in advance of the release there to prepare for the handover of the POWs in North Vietnam.

The top U.S. representative on the four-party commission, Maj. Gen. Gilbert H. Woodward, advised Washington he expected to work out precise details of the release times at a Saturday meeting of the commission, Friedheim said.

But the release could come by midnight Sunday, Washington time, which would be midday Monday in Vietnam.

Friedheim said so far the Communists have not provided the names of those they will release. But he said the North Vietnamese have said among those freed in Hanoi "will be some sick and wounded."

The Communists have identified 456 U.S. servicemen as prisoners in North Vietnam, 99 servicemen and 32 civilians as POWs in South Vietnam, and seven servicemen and three civilians as captives in Laos.

Friedheim said he did not know whether any of the Laotian captives would be among those freed in the first group in Hanoi.

The Joint Reception Center for Operation Homecoming today released the names of military prisoners of war, including two upstate New Yorkers, currently being held in South Vietnam. From the list will come the 144 men expected to be returned Sunday.

The New Yorkers included on the list were Marine Capt. Bruce R. Archer of Rochester, son of Mrs. Mary Archer, Army CWO Roger A. Miller of Miller, near Poughkeepsie, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Miller.

Release of the prisoners has been held up pending completion of work by the Four-Party Joint Military Commission (JMC) composed of the United States, the Viet Cong and North and South Vietnam.

The committee and its subcommittee on POWs has met frequently, amid some signs of procedural wrangling, on how to work out details of a prisoner exchange. But so far, nothing public has emerged on American POWs.

South Vietnamese military sources said today they have given a list of 26,000 Communist troops to the other side and have received in return a list of 4,000 government soldiers held captive.

"We believe there are many more (South Vietnamese POWs)," one source said.

The Foreign Ministry has said the Communists hold about 28,000 South Vietnamese prisoners of war, half of them military and half political.

$1.6 Million Is Low Bid for Rondout Bridge Repairs

By HUGH REYNOLDS

ALBANY
Klebens Construction Company of Dobbs Ferry was the low bidder at $1,659,255 at bid openings for the reconstruction and resurfacing of the Rondout Creek Bridge held at Department of Transportation offices on Thursday.

Contracts should be awarded "in about a month" according to a DOT spokesman and work on the bridge will begin immediately after. It was emphasized, however, that the bridge will remain open to vehicular traffic until schools close in mid-June and that the bridge would be closed for no more than four months. The first stages of the contract, the spokesman explained, will involve work on the substructure of the bridge; the deck itself won't be removed until around June 25.

The contract also calls for the installation of signal lights in Kingston at Abel Street and Wilbur Avenue, on Wilbur Avenue and West O'Reilly Street, and Wilbur Avenue at Greenkill Avenue. Detour signs will also be constructed as part of what is known as the second phase of the Rondout Creek Bridge contract. The first phase of the Bridge project will come to, with contract, costing $367,490, was awarded to Callanan Industries of Eddyville last September and includes the preparation of the detour route along Salem Street from Route 9W in Port Jervis to the Eddyville Bridge. That work is reportedly on schedule and will be finished by June 1. Assuming Klebens' low bid of $1,659,255 is accepted, the total cost of the Rondout Creek Bridge project will come to, with the addition of the $367,490 for the first contract, $2,023,745. The state will pay the entire cost of the first contract, while the federal government is expected to pay "about half" the cost of the second contract, bringing the state's overall cost to about $1.2 million.

There were five bids received at Thursday's bid opening, ranging from Klebens' apparent low bid of $1,659,255 to a high of $2,746,021 from Savin Brothers Inc. of Bloomfield, Conn. The Ardsley Const. Co. of Scarsdale bid $1,818,175; the Thompson Const. Corp. of Albany bid $2,314,676 and the Burnelli Const. Co. of Southington, Conn. bid $2,483,550.

Officials from the State Department of Transportation in Albany said that their estimates on the job were between "one and two million dollars, so the low bidder is in the ballpark."

Initially, there was considerable opposition expressed on the Rondout Creek reconstruction job for two main reasons: the inconvenience that would be caused by shutting down the bridge for an extended period of time and the feeling in some quarters that the state, by reconstructing the Rondout Bridge, was abandoning plans for the proposed Kingston-Ulster Arterial which calls for a new bridge over the Rondout, several hundred feet east of the present bridge.

However, Raymond T. Schuler, commissioner of transportation, in a speech before the Ulster County Chamber of Commerce in Kingston on Jan. 25, emphasized that the reconstruction of the 1,063-foot Rondout Bridge was in no way connected with plans for the new highway and that work on those plans was continuing. Schuler also said that leaving one lane of the bridge open while work was being carried out on the other would not be feasible from a construction and traffic viewpoint and in addition, it was unlikely that the federal government would approve of such a procedure.

Another Debate on Sex Education

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON
For 2½-hours Thursday night, some 50 persons debated the pros and cons of sex education at the initial meeting of Kingston Parents United.

The group was formed just recently to oppose the health education curriculum offered to sixth graders in the Kingston Consolidated School District, and to force the Board of Education to revise certain segments of the program some parents consider "offensive."

But much of Thursday's session focused on a different aspect of the sex education controversy: a forum held at Kingston High School Jan. 10 — and sponsored by the local YWCA — that dealt candidly with venereal disease and premarital sex.

A 30-minute tape of that forum was played to the gathering Thursday at the Ulster County Court House. Panel members included Dr. Theodore Jackaway, a Kingston gynecologist and obstetrician; Paul Treanor, a representative of the Family Service Center; Nancy Rosen, from a venereal disease clinic in Poughkeepsie; and Daniel Weeks, director of Young Life.

In the audience Thursday were some 15 students from Kingston High School, who defended both the intent and content of the program. Richard Gossett, president of the Kingston High School Student Council, said the panel discussion was attended by between 100 and 125 students; that no one was forced to attend; that those who did attend could have left at any time. Gossett said it was his feeling that all of the students found the discussion informative and educational.

A number of parents also defended the program. "Those aren't children we're speaking about," said one, "they're young adults, and they're growing up in a different time and a different world than we did. Knowledge isn't something we should fear; we should fear V.D."

Another parent added, "I'm sure the kids can take it (the forum) at face value. It was a balanced presentation. It is important that they learn the facts."

But members of Kingston

Parents United see things differently. Most said they favor sex education, as long as it deals with the biological aspects of the subject. They object, however, to sex education studies that attempt to "create attitudes" and impose moral judgments on the students.

"This time, the school has gone too far," said Mrs. Leona Tobin, the "advisor" for Kingston Parents United, "once it (sex education) starts, it gets out of hand." She added that parents have the responsibility for molding the attitudes of their children, not the school district.

There was some discussion, also, on the controversial film-strip that is included in the district's health education curriculum. Several parents said they object to a particular segment that asserts that masturbation is physically harmless. Rabbi Jonathan Eichhorn said he viewed the film before it was adopted by the district, and said he found "nothing reprehensible" about its content.

It was emphasized at Thursday's meeting that the sixth grade health education curriculum and the forum presented at Kingston High School were not related in any way. But Kingston Parents United said that both ultimately fall under the jurisdiction of the Board of Education which, some parents contend, has created an attitude of permissiveness in the district schools that will continue to grow unless stopped immediately.

DA's Move... County Changes Plans

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON
A resolution calling for the leasing of a 2,800 square foot building on Sawkill Road for temporary offices for the Ulster County District Attorney's Office was withdrawn between the 4 and 8 p.m. sessions of the Legislature Thursday and the county board agreed instead to renovate the present sheriff's offices on Wall Street for District Attorney Francis J. Vogt and his staff.

It is reported that the change in plans came about when it was learned that the completion of the new Ulster County Jail on Golden Hill would be ahead of schedule and that the sheriff's office could be moved there as early as July.

The need to find different quarters for the DA was prompted by the vastly overcrowded conditions under which the district attorney's business has been conducted for sometime at the Ulster County Court House.

The legislature had contemplated, on recommendation of the Building Committee, that a negotiating process is renting the Roach-Williams Building on Sawkill Road about a half-mile from Washington Avenue for $13,000 a year for two years.

The county board also voted to enter into an agreement with an architect to study renovation of several county buildings for office space. The Building Committee, Robert Kuhlmann (R-Dist. 10), chairman, has been studying the feasibility of converting the Flatbush Avenue Infirmary and the present jail on Wall Street for county office use.

The Legislature voted 25 to 7 to give the Bridge and Highway Department the right of eminent domain. Legislator George Barthel (D-Dist. 10) stated he felt that all property taken by the county should be acquired through mutual agreement and that there was no need for "blanket approval." Legislature. The Democrats Legislator James Gilpatrick (D-favored his proposal the GOP (City) asked for a legal opinion, voted it down.

The original resolution was drawn by William West (R-Dist. 12) who stated he felt that the county's first obligation is to the citizens who come to do business at the County Office Building and that county employees should be willing to park their cars a few blocks away to accommodate those citizens. Legislator Ralph C. Brach (R-Dist. 9) concurred.

West proposed two hour parking limits and up to $10 fines for violators.

Another resolution calling for a public hearing on a local law which would provide regulations for governing repair services in Ulster County was referred to the Judicial and Legal Committee and the GOP voted to study the operation of county departments in relation to the Data Processing Department with the Democrats voting the proposal down.

All members of the county board approved an amendment to the county's sales tax measure with the exception of the Nirenberg. The amendment would make the local law conform with state law, according to Majority Leader Ernest Gardner (R-Dist. 11). The board agreed further to investigate providing additional Building and that county employees should be willing to park their cars a few blocks away to accommodate those citizens. Legislator Ralph C. Brach (R-Dist. 9) concurred.

Monetary Crisis in West Germany

Fight for the Dollar Continues

BONN (AP) — The rush to swap dollars for marks continued without letup today, and West Germany's central bank bought between $700 million and $1 billion in the first hour of trading on the Frankfurt exchange, dealers estimated.

The Bonn government appeared determined to keep buying American currency so that the value of the mark would not be forced up. It was also adamant against revaluing the mark upward, the action that the U.S. government wants it to take.

Dealers in Frankfurt said it was no longer a matter of revaluing the mark but one of devaluing the dollar.

In after-hours trading Thursday, the dollar fell to 3.1495 marks, below the 3.15 floor level that the government must maintain unless it increases the value of the mark.

Profit-seeking speculators and businessmen hedging against devaluation poured more dollars in this morning, and the opening figure was 3.1500, bringing the Bundesbank back in to buy.

Although the Bundesbank has bought $4 billion since late last week, German officials vowed to keep the dollar from sinking to a level that would give U.S. exports a new advantage against German competition.

"We can hold out longer," Finance Minister Helmut Schmidt said Thursday.

The government also rejected any idea of revaluing the mark upward, or allowing it to float and let the market determine its value. Either action would put German exporters at the same disadvantage that devaluation of the dollar would.

The huge purchases of dollars threatened to worsen inflation in West Germany. But officials in Bonn said the risk was worth taking if they could save thousands of export-trade jobs that would be threatened if they stopped propping up the dollar and in effect let it devalue.

Chancellor Willy Brandt scheduled a meeting today with Schmidt and Economics Minister Hans Friderichs, but officials stressed that no new monetary steps were expected. This indicated that Brandt was determined to ride out the crisis in hopes it would die down soon.

Radio Trouble by Jet Before Crash

ALAMEDA, Calif. (UPI) — A Navy jet fighter experienced radio trouble before it swept into its deadly dive into a three-story apartment house, a Navy investigating officer said today.

The A7 Corsair smashed into the building Wednesday night and turned it into a pile of blazing rubble.

Disaster crews Thursday recovered the bodies of eight persons, including those of three children and apparently that of the pilot, Lt. Robert L. Ward, Lemoore Naval Air Station, Calif. Authorities said that 14 other residents of the apartment were unaccounted for. The search continued today.

The Navy investigator said that the last transmission from Ward came just 10 minutes before the crash, showing that he was experiencing radio trouble.

The officer said that the plane was at 28,000 feet and traveling over 400 miles per hour when it made a slow turn to return to Lemoore near Fresno.

The attack bomber, he said, suddenly went into a dive and "might have broken the sound barrier just before impact." He explained that many area residents reported hearing explosions and these might have been sonic booms.

Ward and another pilot were on a training flight to Sacramento. Navy officials said the two planes were in formation when Ward's craft began losing altitude.

The crash also ruined two other apartment buildings and a house. Residents from these escaped to safety.

Norman Estes, an assistant Alameda fire chief, said the aviation gasoline explosion produced such intense heat many bodies probably were incinerated and may never be found.

"It's a crematorium," Estes said.

Twenty of the building's 41 tenants escaped the building before it crumbled.

The largest piece of the 20-ton jet found was a one-foot square of gleaming aluminum. Authorities said the jet crashed into the basement where it exploded in a ball of lethal flame.

'Weird Assortment in State Dept'...Mason

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Six lawyer-senators have been picked to share with a former judge the chore of running the Senate's in-depth investigation of the Watergate bugging and related political espionage last year.

The six men—three Republicans and three Democrats—were named by their party leadership Thursday to a special committee given broad powers to subpoena witnesses and records as it probes the bizarre break-in at Democratic national headquarters in Washington.

The special panel will be chaired by Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., a former state Supreme Court judge before coming to the Senate 18 years ago.

Picked for Ervin's committee were Republicans Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, Edward J. Gurney of Florida and Lowell P. Weicker Jr. of Connecticut, along with Democrats Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii, Joseph M. Montoya of New Mexico and Herman E. Talmadge of Georgia.

There were no official reasons given for the selection of the six men. But all are lawyers and generally regarded as noncontroversial. As one leading Democrat put it: "We had to be careful and not pick people who would make this thing look like a witchhunt."

It was learned, too, that Republicans carefully avoided asking senators up for reelection in 1974—since the probe will focus on alleged Republican espionage in the last election and reported links to the White House.

But Baker, tapped to be the ranking GOP member on the Ervin committee, told a news conference he was committed to a "full, fair, thorough nonpolitical, nonpartisan" investigation.

"I want the chips to fall where they will," he said. "We'll row our own boat."

The committee was set up by a 77-0 vote of the Senate on Wednesday to thoroughly plumb the bugging of Democratic National Committee headquarters at the Watergate complex here and allegations of related espionage and sabotage by Republicans.

Two former campaign aides of President Nixon were convicted last week in the Watergate plot and five other men pleaded guilty to participating in it.

CAPPELLI GUILTY — Newburgh police chief Humbert M. Cappelli (R) is led from a White Plains courthouse Thursday after a six-man, six-woman jury found him guilty on 12 of 14 criminal charges, including the theft of money from gambling raids and planting narcotics on suspects. Cappelli, who will be sentenced March 2, could receive up to 43 years in prison, and still faces eight other indictments. Fifteen other members of the Newburgh police force have been indicted during the past year. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Special Watergate Panel Selected

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — State Sen. Edwyn E. Mason of Hobart says "a weird assortment of characters is running the Education Department."

That is why, Mason said Thursday, he is supporting Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's proposal to establish an education inspector general's office to investigate waste and inefficiency.

"We've got to restore sanity and common sense to the badly warped system of education in the state," said Mason, one of the most conservative Republicans in the legislature.

Mason also endorsed Deputy Health Commissioner Daniel Klepak, Rockefeller's reported choice for the education inspector general's job.

On another matter, Mason repeated his attack on Education Commissioner Ewald Nyquist for hiring Jack Chen, a longtime publicist for mainland China, to develop Chinese-studies programs. "Mao Tse-Tung has been responsible for more human slaughter than anyone since Ghengis Khan," said Mason. "yet Nyquist has employed one of Mao's press agents in the State Education Department."

Mason's comments were contained in a statement issued while the legislature was in recess. The two chambers resumed work on Monday.

In a separate development, Senate Majority Leader Warren M. Anderson and Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea said they would meet with U.S. Sen. Jacob K. Javits and U.S. Rep. Howard Robison. All are Republicans. The purpose of the meeting, not yet scheduled, is to foster cooperation between the legislature and New York's members in the U.S. Senate and the House of Representatives.

State Sen. Ronald B. Stafford of Peru, meanwhile, introduced a bill to exempt maple sap producers from licensing requirements that apply to food processors. He said the requirements were not needed for such a small and seasonal industry.

Montevideo Is Seized And Isolated

MONTEVIDEO (UPI) — Armed sailors seized and isolated the port of Montevideo early today as soldiers occupied radio and television stations amid a growing power struggle between military chiefs and President Juan Maria Bordaberry.

It was the most serious clash between the armed forces and Bordaberry since his election in November, 1971.

Uruguay is the smallest country in South America—its area is slightly larger than Missouri—and it is located between Argentina and Brazil. Its population is 2.8 million and cattle is its main industry.

The crisis stemmed from Bordaberry's refusal to fire Gen. Antonio Francesc, a former defense minister appointed to the post again Wednesday. The appointment came after some politicians charged military chiefs with planning a coup.

Armed sailors commandeered automobiles and buses and barricaded themselves inside the port area. A navy statement said its commanders backed Bordaberry but there were reports some high-ranking officers disagreed.

Earlier, combat-dressed troops occupied radio and television stations and seized tape recordings of a speech by Bordaberry that publicly defied demands he dismiss Francesc.

A military communique said the appointment of Francesc would turn the armed forces into a "tool of political and economic interests." Military commanders said that when Francesc held the post before, subversion—apparently carried out by Tupamaros guerrillas—"was organized and consolidated."

Kissinger's Mission

Many Americans have gone to Hanoi in the last several years whose objective was not necessarily to help their country. Henry Kissinger's trip this weekend should help America and North Vietnam both.

Especially since the prisoners of war list and, more disappointingly, the missing persons list have been made public. There is agony over the loss of some prisoners, those who died in captivity and those whose names were on American lists but not on North Vietnamese. And even more, the sparse missing persons list is still more distressing.

There will be young Americans who will not get back. That is a tragic fact of life. We should publicly deplore it, do our best to put as much world pressure on the Communists as possible.

Also, we should be tough, very tough, about aid for the reconstruction of North Vietnam as long as there is any doubt about any missing Americans—each should be accounted for by answering the roll call, or being identified in a grave—as far as possible.

The agreement signed in Paris was intended to bring a long, lasting peace in Indochina. The first few days, it did nothing of the kind, though the fighting has subsided. The peace-keeping force was having difficulty to organize and the warring factions went on with their military activities.

Kissinger will carry incentives to North Vietnam to keep the peace. He can truthfully tell them that every day they cover up the presence of prisoners or of missing persons, they are adding to the resistance of Congress to give them any aid to rebuild their country. Hanoi must learn to turn toward cooperation in seeking out and identifying American prisoners and missing persons before it can expect us to turn to the works of peace.

Confusing the Ladies

It is a wonder that women's lib hasn't tackled Social Security. For payment purposes this agency places women in more and differing categories than men, though at first glance they benefit more by them.

The working woman's benefits are based on her own work record, just as is a man's. If she marries, she has the option of collecting on her husband's work record if his benefits would be higher.

The dependent wife has no work record but at age 65 collects an amount equal to one-half her husband's age 65 benefits. She can collect reduced benefits as early as age 62, without earning a penny.

The divorced wife gets no benefits unless she is married for 20 years and is at least 62. Her benefits do not begin unless her husband retires or dies. If the divorced wife has her husband's dependent children in her care, she gets the same benefits at his death as a widowed mother, even though the marriage was not in existence for 20 years.

There are categories for divorced widows, for aged widow, for widowed mothers, for dependent children. Since benefits are based on the husband's earnings, his dependents cannot begin collecting until he dies. Many men defer collecting benefits until they reach 72, when they can take their benefits without regard to their current earnings.

It would pay anyone interested to lay his case before the Social Security agency and get the story as it applies to her. That is how complicated and confusing it can be.

DRINKING CAUTIONARY — With 56,000 traffic deaths a year, at least half in which drinking is a factor, the National Safety Council has urged the alcoholic beverage industry to label its bottles that excessive drinking can impair driving. The only trouble is, few would heed the warning.

A MODEST GOVERNOR — Stopping the business of promulgating the governor's picture and name at every opportunity—on highway signs and government documents and stationary, for instance—will save a lot of money. Governor Daniel Walker of Illinois is the modest official who ordered the waste stopped.

BERRY'S WORLD

"I'm not against women's lib, dear, but calling you a 'fingernail' just sounds funny!"

Jack Anderson Says

Admiral Moorer's Testimony

WASHINGTON — In secret testimony, Adm. Thomas Moorer, the Joint Chiefs chairman, has told how the North Vietnamese assassinated village leaders in the South, deployed their forces and prepared for "military action" to exploit the cease-fire.

His testimony dealt with preparations in October when the North Vietnamese first anticipated a cease-fire. But he indicated tersely that similar preparations had been started before the final signing last month. Testifying behind closed doors on the eve of the signing, he told the House Appropriations Committee: "We have indications that in some areas, they (Communists) have received instructions to go out with their maximum capability at the time a cease-fire is signed."

He described how the Communists had reacted in October. "Just prior to the October 31st proposed cease-fire," he said, "the enemy took actions to redisplay their forces in such a way that they could exploit the cease-fire by such things as assassinating the leaders in the villages throughout the area so they could seize control of the local governments.

"At the same time, they proposed to retain the areas they had captured so far and hold their main force units in such a way that they could refit them and prepare them for further military action when the cease-fire was achieved."

"They renewed their logistic offensive. They took action to reconstitute in South Vietnam the forces which had been pretty well depleted during the previous action. They made no effort at all to withdraw any forces from South Vietnam."

Soviet, Chinese Supplies

The nation's no. 1 military man added bluntly: "The heavy resupply of war materials was apparently from Soviet Russia as well as from China. They began to expand their storage areas, step up their infiltration activities, and... they began to deploy about 120 tanks and a large amount of artillery and antiaircraft."

Later, Rep. Elford Cederberg, R-Mich., got back to the tanks. "You said there are 100 and some tanks in Laos, now is that correct?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," agreed Moorer. "Are those tanks that were there before the closing of Haiphong (harbor)," asked Cederberg, "or did they come down through China?"

"I think," said the admiral, "they could probably have come down through China."

Then he gave more details about the flow of supplies from China. The North Vietnamese, he said, receive "very significant assistance from the Chinese. As a matter of fact, just north of the border at Ping Hsing just inside China they receive just mountains of supplies... Then they feed them across the border."

"What," demanded Rep. William Minshall, R-Ohio, "is the capability of the North Vietnamese now to conduct further warfare in South Vietnam?"

The stocky, graying admiral was less concerned about this in secret than he has been in public. "I would give a short answer to your question," he replied, "by saying I do not think that they, as of this moment, have the capability for what they call main force unit action."

"They are now conserving their resources, protecting main force units which comprise about 15 divisions and simply devoting most of their efforts to sabotage, harassment and actions of that kind. We find, for instance, that many of the battalions are at half strength, and the effects of the heavy ground fighting since the 30th of March has depleted their overall capability."

POW Camp Pictures

Moorer showed the congressmen classified pictures of the POW camps in North Vietnam to dispute reports that they had suffered any bomb damage from the B-52 raids.

"I would like to show the committee now some pictures of the POW camps in Hanoi, because there was quite a bit of publicity to the effect that they had been attacked. This is not the case." The pictures showed no bomb craters or other damage.

Speaking of the 15 big bombers shot down in the raids, he reported: "Five of the crews bailed out in Laos. So 10 of the B-52s actually went down in North Vietnamese territory. Of further significance, they went down in the immediate vicinity of Hanoi, because that was where the concentration of surface-to-air missiles was found."

"MIGs did not destroy any B-52s... Neither did anti-aircraft fire. We have only one indication that a B-52 may have been damaged slightly by anti-aircraft... I would point out that the SA-2 was designed to shoot down the B-52... Over 1,000 SAMs were fired during this period. These SAMs are over 30 feet long. The pilots call them telephone poles..."

He could sit in warm sunshine and read his poem about a young sailor and a beautiful lady encompassed by love, and it sounded to Oscar Wilde as though someone else had written it: "It was as if Numidian javelins Pierced through and through his wild and whirling brain. And his nerves thrilled like throbbing violins In exquisite pulsation, and the pain Was such sweet anguish that he never drew His lips from hers till overhead the lark of warning flew."

He was dying of meningitis in a small room in Paris. The wallpaper nauseated him. He was a wit to the last. "One of us," he said, "has to go..."

Ray Cromley Says

Social Spending Higher

WASHINGTON (NEA) — There is much hypocrisy in the attacks on President Nixon's 1974 social and welfare budget.

Headlines in a prominent national newspaper say "Nixon Budget Lists 100 Programs That Would Be Limited or Ended to Attain a 'Safe' Spending Level... Large Social Cuts... Reductions Are Aimed at Big Poverty and Education Efforts..."

The story below that headline pursues the same theme. But a sentence well down in the piece discloses that, after all, "Total social spending in the new budget is higher than last year's." (So is obligatory authority.)

Actually, proposed direct and indirect spending in the civil rights area will rise by $600 million, or 23 per cent. Drug abuse treatment and rehabilitation programs will almost double to $274 million. Federal educational outlays will increase $600 million, or 6 per cent. There will be a step-up of 10 per cent, or $10.8 billion, in income security programs, when Social Security is included, or an increase of $5.2 billion, or 9 per cent, exclusive of Social Security.

Medicare expenditures will rise 26 per cent, but payments by the aged will also increase. Health programs exclusive of Medicare will rise $1.3 billions or 9 per cent. In manpower training and associated programs there will be a decrease in spending of half a billion dollars, or 9 per cent, with the elimination of emergency employment assistance which began in 1972 under Mr. Nixon.

Overall, the 1974 budget calls for spending on social programs at well over twice the level of the last Johnson budget, whether Social Security and Medicare are included or not.

What is developing is a war over the wrong issues. The notion is being spread that if you are not for an old program (inherited from Johnson, Kennedy, Truman or Eisenhower days) you are against the poor, the ailing and the unfortunate. Yet experts this reporter has talked to inside and outside the administration, conservative and liberal alike, agree in private it would be well for all of us, including the poor and unfortunate, if a good many of these programs (or parts of them) went by the board.

Many are inefficient and cumbersome. Some do actual harm. Others are dreadfully expensive for the few they serve, or don't help many of the people they are designed for. Some were good in their time, but their usefulness has in large measure passed. Some were never needed.

But the danger is that this fight will degenerate into a shouting match over who has most empathy with the unfortunate.

The proper argument is over whether Mr. Nixon's new programs will be more effective or less effective than the old, whether program B should be increased at the expense or elimination of program A and whether in some cases any federal program at all is necessary. Is the government attempting to do something people can do better for themselves?

The battle against killing the old program will have its own lobby — the organizers, bureaucrats, administrators, managers and others who profit from these programs. These special interests will attempt to convince the unfortunates who now receive some aid (however inefficiently and unfairly it may be given) that they had better cling to what they're getting or they might not get anything at all.

The fight will be rough.

The Witty Oscar Was Wilde

Once a year I traipse through the bookshelves which line this office and select a volume of Oscar Wilde to take to bed. Most of us — and I include myself — are so busy reading popular authors that we have lost appreciation for the rich smooth velvet of language.

Wilde had it. He was an author, a playwright, a poet, and wit. He lived, sinned and died when Victoria was preaching puritanism to her son, Edward VII. Wilde was as round as a hermaphrodite, and was addicted to swallow tails, silk hats and gold canes — the mark of the fop.

His mind was Sheffield steel. At a social gathering, he said something witty and a duke said: "Oh, dear. Wish I'd said that." Wilde said: "Don't worry. You will. You will."

At a regal ball, he stood near a beautiful lady who was watching the dancers circle the gleaming floor. Wilde pointed to a doddering millionaire who was trying to waltz and he said: "Would you marry him for a million pounds?" the lady nodded. "Of course."

"Would you go to bed with him for a shilling?" She heaved her chest up to its outrage. "Sir," she said, "what do you think I am?" Wilde bowed.

"We have already established that, my lady," he said, "we are now trying to reach a price." To his lawyer he once said: "I rely on you to misrepresent me." Possibly he spoke the truth for all, when he said: "I can resist everything except temptation." In the slums of Soho he observed: "Work is the curse of the drinking classes."

In 1882, he visited America. When he returned to England, he said: "The English really have everything in common with the Americans except, of course, language." When he was bankrupt, he remained optimistic. "I am writing a small volume of moral essays," he said, "which I am hopeful will be purchased by many wealthy persons of restricted means who wish to give their friends little tokens of ill-will at Christmastime." When he exchanged greetings with a boor on the street, Wilde murmured: "There are a hundred things I want not to say to you."

He was part saint, part satyr. "It is the confession, not the priest, that gives us absolution." A London producer read Wilde's new play, "Lady Windermere's Fan," and liked it so much he offered to buy it outright for $5,000. Wilde said: "I have so much confidence in your excellent judgment that I must refuse your offer."

The only way to be certain to be remembered after death, he said, is not to pay one's bills. He was a cynic with an icing of sentimentality. "Each time one loves is the only time one has ever loved." He hid deep religious feelings. In Rome, he watched people kneel in St. Peter's Square as the Pope was borne past in splendor.

"My heart stole back across the wide wastes of years To One who wandered by a lonely sea."

And sought in vain for any place of rest:

"Foxes have holes, and every bird its nest."

I, only I, must wander wearily

And bruise my feet, and drink wine salted with tears."

Hatred, Wilde said, is founded on fear. Moral indignation can be traced to a sense of guilt. Good resolutions are blank checks drawn by men on a bank where they have no account.

He was sent to prison for homosexuality and, when he saw the vile conditions of the jail, he said: "If this is the way Queen Victoria treats her convicts, she doesn't deserve to have any."

Behind bars, Wilde borrowed money from friends to pay the fines of three small children in jail for poaching rabbits. He wrote his famous "Ballad of Reading Gaol." His mother died. His wife died. Wilde knew that he would never see his sons again. At that point, his talent died.

He could sit in warm sunshine and read his poem about a young sailor and a beautiful lady encompassed by love, and it sounded to Oscar Wilde as though someone else had written it:

"It was as if Numidian javelins

Pierced through and through his wild and whirling brain.

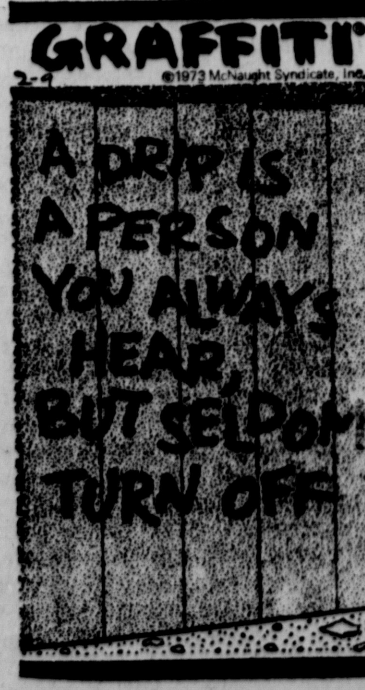

And his nerves thrilled like throbbing violins

In exquisite pulsation, and the pain

Was such sweet anguish that he never drew

His lips from hers till overhead the lark of warning flew."

He was dying of meningitis in a small room in Paris. The wallpaper nauseated him. He was a wit to the last. "One of us," he said, "has to go..."

Buffalo Mayor Resigns, Cites Heart Condition

BUFFALO (AP) — The Buffalo Common Council meets late this afternoon to act on the resignation of ailing Mayor Frank A. Sedita.

It is expected the Democratic-controlled board will appoint Deputy Mayor Stanley M. Makowski to fill the post given up by the 65-year-old Sedita.

Sedita, troubled by angina pectoris, a tightening of chest arteries, said Thursday he has no immediate plans to accept a state appointment.

DISMISSAL UPHELD — The dismissal of a high school music teacher who underwent a sex change operation and wanted to return to her teaching job was upheld unanimously by the New Jersey State Board of Education. The board voted 10-0 to support the decision of State Education Commissioner Carl Marburger to dismiss Mrs. Paula M. Grossman, 53, on the grounds the students would be harmed by her return. Zoning Reviewed In Plattekill

TOWN OF PLATTEKILL Town of Plattekill were Concepts set forth on a generally accepted by persons proposed zoning map and in attendance at an informational meeting at the Plattekill Fire House Thursday night, according to planning board chairman O. Orlovski.

Approximately 75 people were in attendance at the meeting, which is the first of three to be held during February in various parts of the township. The presentation was made by Ralph Seligman, planning board consultant with the firm of Mayo, Lynch and Associates, who prepared the data, reports and proposals.

Informational hearings will also be held at the Clintonville Fire House at 8 p.m. on Feb. 23 and 27.

FNCB had used a floating formula to determine the prime rate, the interest rate charged corporate borrowers with the highest credit ratings.

"This action is the direct result of government pressure, in effect," the bank's spokesman said. "The base rate, which previously was determined by the free market, is now being administered by government authorities." "The United States government is asking commercial banks to assume the burden which in the end must be borne by monetary policy," the bank said.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The First National City Bank said Thursday it would give in to "government pressure" and keep its prime interest rate at 6 per cent.

Stiff Term for Drug Possession

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI) — A defense motion to suppress the evidence on grounds that the search was illegal. Johnson was the first person in the county charged with first degree possession of a dangerous drug, a Class A felony. District Attorney Arnold W. Proskin said after the sentencing that people involved with heroin in the Albany County will get stiff sentences, even if we're doing a lot to deter heroin pushers.

Johnson said the governor's plan would yield a "computerized criminal law system."

Even the kid five times removed from Johnson would have to get life imprisonment under the governor's proposal, Proskin said. "This would take away the basic right of the judiciary; we must have the appeal case."

At the time of his arrest, Johnson had been stopped for speeding, and the search was made after a police check disclosed that Johnson was a fugitive from justice in Louisiana. State police said the defendant agreed to the search. His lawyer has said he would appeal the case.

The estimated value of the drugs was placed at $250,000. Johnson told the court that, while the illegal drugs were found in his car, he did not give state police the right to search the trunk where the contraband was found. Clyne had earlier denied a

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST
(c) 1973, Emily Post Institute, Inc.

Dear Mrs. Post:

This is my first write-in and, after last night's affair, may not be my last. Last evening was the first dinner party ever given by my husband's company in a restaurant. We had trouble with a new minor stockholder's wife.

The woman sat across from us and when she saw the bill handed to my husband (corporation president and major stockholder) she loudly asked me, "How much is it?" I said, "I don't know. I do not ask my husband such questions." That angered her and she shouted at my husband, "But I want to know." Her husband sat there and said nothing. My husband graciously told her the amount.

We discussed it on the way home and came to the conclusion that we need a good, firm, nice answer as I am sure this will happen again. Unfortunately! Or perhaps better, should we arrange with the restaurant for paying the bill in private and not getting it in front of employees and stockholders?

My husband and I would appreciate an answer. Thank you.

Mrs. H. W.

Dear Mrs. H. W.:

You have hit upon the right answer — you should arrange ahead of time for the restaurant to send the bill, or to give it to your husband in private. Then, if anyone says, "What about the bill?" your husband can simply say, "That has all been taken care of."

Should anyone again be so rude as to ask the man who is in the position of host (your husband) the amount, he should simply say, "Sorry, that's a company secret," and stick to it.

Dear Mrs. Post:

About a year ago I gave a bridal shower for a friend. Since the marriage, I have been waiting for an invitation to dinner.

Is it my place to have the bride and groom for dinner, or should they invite me?

Dear Lois:

The bride should repay your kindness in giving her a shower by inviting you to her home first. However, she may not realize this and rather than stand on ceremony, call her and invite them both to your house for a cocktail or an afterdinner cup of coffee. If you play the "who owes who" game too strictly you may find you have lost a friend.

Pageant Committees Are Named

The second in a series of orientation sessions for prospective contestants in this year's Miss Ulster County Scholarship Pageant will be held Wednesday, Feb. 14 at 7:30 p.m. in the meeting rooms of Saugerties Savings Bank, 87 Market Street.

The 1973 Scholarship Pageant, the 18th annual edition, will be held Saturday, April 7 at Saugerties High School. This is a preliminary to the Miss America Pageant held each year in Atlantic City.

Saugerties Jaycees, who received the Miss America franchise, are again sponsoring the Scholarship Pageant.

Prospective contestants and other interested individuals with parents and friends may attend. The entrance to the meeting room is at the rear where parking is ample.

Entries Chairman Richard A. Aguanno announced that all Ulster County young ladies or those attending schools in the county are eligible. They must be in the 18 to 23 age bracket and unmarried.

Applications of prospective contestants will be reviewed and interviews will be held. Any question as to age eligibility will be answered at that time. More specific information is available by calling or writing Entries Chairman Aguanno, 26 Louis Avenue, Saugerties, 12477.

The pageant offers $1,000 in scholarships, other valuable awards and wide acclaim; also, a stepping stone to the coveted title of Miss America.

The Entries Committee includes Marie Aguanno, Dorothy Corea, Pageant secretary; Marlene Perry, Janis Johnson O'Shaughnessy (Miss Ulster County 1968); Beth Offermann Fisher (Miss Saugerties 1965); Patricia Czarski (Miss Ulster County 1971), and Publicity Director Al Cawein.

Nomination applications will be available at Joseph's Beauty Salon, Main Street, Saugerties; Kingston Music Center, Ulster Avenue Mall; Ulster County Public Relations Office, County Building, Kingston; London's, Saugerties and Wall Street, Office, State University College, New Paltz and the office of James Haviland at Ulster County Community College.

Additional committee members named were Walter Gustafson, treasurer; Frank Orlando, judges, and Robert Ricketson, official photographer.

The Pageant Committee announced that the Finance Campaign had started to secure advertisements and mentions in the local Miss America program. The proceeds will be used for the Scholarship Fund. Executive Director Robert L. Schnell and Business Manager Cawein are coordinating the souvenir journal advertising.

Wedding Plans Upset Mother

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.
DEAR ABBY: This is a terribly upsetting problem. My husband and I were divorced a few years ago, and he has since remarried. It was an ugly, bitter-filled divorce.

Our 23-year-old daughter is being married, and she wants her Dad at the wedding. My utter contempt for him is so overwhelming that I cannot bear to be anywhere near where he is, and I do not wish to be a part of the ceremony if he is in it. I fear that my hatred for him will throw a pall over an occasion that should be happy and hate-free.

I wish I could control this feeling, but I can't. My daughter is unhappy as she wants us both there, but Abby, there is just no way I can look at that man with anything but contempt. And yet, I feel I MUST make myself go for my daughter's sake. Please, what should I do?

HATING MYSELF

DEAR HATING: That's your problem. You "hate" yourself for being unable to handle your feelings about him. Get yourself together as strikingly beautiful as you can, and yes, line yourself up an attractive escort, put a smile on your face, and go. Lady You might just surprise the daylight out of yourself and have a wonderful time.

DEAR ABBY: We have just moved to Twin Falls, Idaho, and I am eight months pregnant, but I am unable to find a doctor who will see me unless I have my bill paid IN FULL in advance.

My husband filed bankruptcy last year, and we can't get a loan to take care of this, so what am I supposed to do? We aren't deadbeats, we are honest people who ran into a lot of hard luck. My husband is working now, and I know we could get this paid on time, but not all at once in advance.

I called the mayor but couldn't get past his secretary. By coincidence, the only neighbor I know is also pregnant and is due about the same time I am. Yesterday she told me she had just seen her doctor who had been taking care of her from the beginning, and HE told her he wanted HIS bill paid in full in advance or he wouldn't deliver her baby!

My husband and I even considered having our baby born at home to save hospital expenses, but if something went wrong, we'd never forgive ourselves. Abby, right now we don't know which way to turn. Can you save us with a miracle?

Dear Abby

BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DESPERATE IN TWIN FALLS

DEAR DESPERATE: Call your County Welfare Department and tell them DEAR ABBY told you to call. Then tell them what you've told me. I cannot believe that ALL the doctors in that city demand cash in advance or no delivery. (And if you have twins in Twin Falls, are you charged double?)
DEAR ABBY: With all the letters in your column lately about dental care, I have something to ask you related to that subject.

What do you think about a woman who always carries a toothbrush and toothpaste in her purse so she can brush her teeth right after she eats, no matter where she is? This can be in a restaurant or in somebody's house.

When she's thru eating, out comes the toothbrush and paste, even if some of us are still eating, and she makes a big thing out of excusing herself to go brush her teeth.

NAUSEATED

DEAR NAUSEATED: It's good for her teeth, but not for your stomachs. I hope this fastidious lady also carries a good strong disinfectant with which to clean the sink afterwards.

DEAR ABBY: Tell that poor woman who claims that she felt like a "castrated animal" after her hysterectomy to get help fast. I am 64 and had a hysterectomy for cancer five months ago, and I can tell you it didn't "castrate" me by any means. I have never felt better, nor more like a woman. Tell that lady to get back with the program before her husband begins to program someone else's computer.

Baseball Owners, Players Still Sparring

NEW YORK (UPI) — In a dramatic, history-making proposal, the major league baseball owners have made a bid to reach a three-year settlement with the players that would enable spring training to open on time.

On the heels of a directive by the league presidents instructing all major league clubs not to open spring training prior to March 1 until a settlement is reached, the owners made a proposal which would enable the players to bring their salary disputes to arbitration for the first time.

With the owners' new package on the table, the prospects for a settlement—perhaps as soon as the next few days—are considered good.

The owners made their new offer Thursday at their fourth meeting with the representatives of the Major League Players Association in the last nine days.

The action by league presidents Joe Cronin of the American League and Chub Feeney of the National League ordering that the camps not be opened prior to March 1st without a settlement sounded a bit drastic.

But the presidents added, "No policy has been adopted at this time concerning the official opening of spring training camps on March 1."

That was the key phrase because there's no legal ramifications in refusing to open the league camps before March 1st. That's when the camps are scheduled to open according to the contracts.

In actual practice, most teams open camp—mainly for pitchers and catchers—before

March 1st but until that date, it's not official.

If a settlement isn't reached by March 1st and the owners then refuse to open the camps, it would be a serious situation. The players could claim a "lockout" since the individual players have contracts with the teams and it could lead to all kinds of litigations.

However, at this point, there seems to be a good chance that the negotiations for a three-year basic contract will be wrapped up long before March 1st.

Feeney said in a statement,

"I can report we had a meeting at which we put on the table a comprehensive offer which involves arbitration and that is something the players have been seeking."

Marvin Miller, Executive Director of the Major League Players Association, said, "We will give it consideration."

John Gaherin, the representative of the owners, added, "We sincerely hope this offer proves to be the instrument that brings us to agreement. This is the first proposal in the history of baseball in which salary arbitration has been put on the table."

The questions of "free agency" (modifying the reserve clause) and arbitration of salary disputes had been considered two of the thorniest issues dividing the two sides.

The players compromised on the free agency question on Jan. 5th when they proposed that it be set aside for a year for study while the rest of the issues are decided immediately. However, the owners would like to delay action on the reserve clause for the three-year length of the contract instead of only one year.

The owners' concession on the arbitration issue removes a stumbling block in the negotiations. The players have wanted arbitration to settle salary disputes but the owners had opposed it in the past.

Another issue separating the two sides was settled when the players agreed to play 162 games for the next three years. The players had originally asked for a shortened schedule but bowed to the owners' argument that economic conditions dictate the necessity for the longer schedule.

Erving Hits 22 Straight Freebies

Career High 58 Points

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Virginia's Dr. J. performed major surgery on the New York Nets and the patients learned one important lesson from the operation. Julius Erving can cut up a basketball team from the foul line as well as from the floor.

Dr. J. was perfect from the foul line, dropping in 22 free throws and accumulated a career high 58 points as the Squires defeated the Nets 123-108 in the only American Basketball Association game played Thursday night.

In the National Basketball

Association, Cleveland trimmed Atlanta 136-132 in overtime, Phoenix took Seattle 125-112 and Golden State downed Portland 123-111.

Erving was simply sensational, scoring 21 of Virginia's 24 points in the first period and 21 of the Squires' 27 points in the final quarter.

The Nets, with George Carter scoring 40 points, whittled Virginia's lead to four points with 4:45 left but Erving, who scored 16 of the Squires' final 18 points, put the game away with a string of baskets.

Cleveland used 38 points by Austin Carr and 22 more by Johnny Johnson to defeat Atlanta. Barry Clemens was the difference in the five-minute overtime, scoring six points including the basket that put the Cavaliers in front for keeps.

Lou Hudson had 38 points and Pete Maravich 37 for the Hawks.

Phoenix showed plenty of defense in the first period, holding Seattle to 12 points and opening a 22-point lead over the Sonics. The Suns used the quick start to coast to their victory, despite 31 points by Seattle's Spencer Haywood. Charlie Scott had 28 for Phoenix.

"It's the worst game we've had since I took over," said Seattle Coach Bucky Buckwalter, who took over as coach of the Sonics Jan. 10. "That's brutal when you score only 12 points."

Nate Thurmond scored 12 of his 39 points in the fourth quarter, leading Golden State past Portland. Thurmond also had 19 rebounds and Rick Barry added 26 points for the Warriors. Geoff Petrie scored 42 for Portland.

Barry sat out the entire second period. Teammate Clyde Lee hit a season-high 21 points and played outstanding defense by holding the Trail Blazers' leading scorer, Sidney Wicks, to 19 points.

Commenting on the Atlanta loss, Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said "We've got to get some players to play defense" an obvious understatement after the loss to Cleveland.

Rich Florence Topples Crane In Pocket Play

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Defending champion Irving Crane of Rochester, N.Y., was defeated 150-64 by Richie Florence of Torrance, Calif., in the $25,000 World Pocket Billiards Championships Thursday.

Crane, who has won this tournament six times since 1942, still leads the 19 entrants in the round-robin competition with a match record of 8-2. Florence improved his record to 6-5 with the victory.

Ray Martin of Clifton, N.J., and Jim Rempe of Scranton, Pa., are in second place with records of 7-3.

In other matches Thursday, Jimmy Moore of Albuquerque, N.M., defeated Joe Balsis of Minersville, Pa., 150-125; Joe Russo, Trenton, N.J., beat Gene Kagy of New York City 150-145; Steve Cook of Lima, Ohio beat Larry Liscio, Hartford, Conn., 150-66; dan Diliberto, Miami, beat Ciero Murphy, Brooklyn, N.Y., 150-53; and Alan Hopkins, Elizabeth, N.J., defeated Jack Breit, Houston, 150-132.

Play continues through Feb. 17.

IMPOSSIBLE SHOT — Jack Nicklaus looks to heavens and flips his club after making impossible shot out of sand during Bob Hope Desert Classic Thursday at Palm Springs. His two-day total of 134 led the field by two strokes. (UPI)

Nick Lead — 2 Strokes

PALM SPRINGS, Calif.

(UPI) — With so many young players on the PGA tour these days, especially on the winter California circuit, it seems strange to see such old familiar names as Arnold Palmer, Gay Brewer, Billy Casper and Doug Sanders up there among the leaders.

It's not strange, though, to find Jack Nicklaus at the head of the pack. That's exactly where he is after two rounds of the 90-hole $160,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic.

Jack, who blitzed Indian Wells with an opening round 64 Wednesday, shot "only" a 70 at tougher Tamarisk in the second round. That put his 36-hole score at 10 under par 134.

Nicklaus neither lost nor gained ground on the field, from the first to second rounds. He was two ahead after 18 and was still two ahead after 36. Only now the players closest to him are veterans: Brewer, Casper and Sanders and Palmer and youngster Allen Miller at 137.

Palmer and Sanders made up the most ground with matching six under 66s at Tamarisk. Miller had a 67 at the same layout. Casper got a 68 and Brewer a 70.

Nicklaus, who won seven titles while playing in only 19 tournaments last year, is in his third event of 1973. He was second in the Los Angeles Open and won the Crosby in sudden death.

Jack said he wasn't unhappy with his second round 70 but noted "it could have been better if I made a few more putts." He said he didn't start to play well until he got to the back side. But by then, he wasn't in shape for a good round.

Nicklaus' longest birdie putt came on the first hole when "I wedged it up to 30 feet and six under par and four strokes behind Nicklaus.

Palmer seemed the most excited of the others making a run at the lead, and who could blame him. Arnie hasn't had much luck putting for more than a year now, and he hasn't won a tourney title in 17 months. So when he dropped a few putts Thursday it seemed just like old times.

"For a change I made a few," said the man who has won the Hope four times since 1960. "This is really a simple game. If you make some putts, you score. I played very well in the first round (71) but I couldn't get the ball in the hole. But that's been a problem now for some time."

Casper, who now has shot two 68s, said his first round play was better but that he was happy about the second 68 because he really didn't have that many chances for birds.

"I made the ones I had a shot at," said Billy, third leading money winner of all time behind Nicklaus and Palmer. "I didn't have that many chances."

John Schlee, who snapped an eight-year slump last Sunday by winning the Hawaiian Open, checked in with a 68 at La Quinta and was all alone at 138.

Ulster at Home

STONE RIDGE

Back in the national rankings as the 13th rated team in the National Junior College Athletic Association, the Ulster County Community College Senators open a two-game home stand against Queensborough Community tonight at 8 o'clock in the Senate Gym.

Coach Ed Evans and the Dutchess Community Falcons will be the Saturday opponents, also at 8 p.m. Coach Mike Perry's squad goes into the game with a 19-4 record. Dutchess is fresh off a 60-51 loss to Westchester and 3-4 in the Mid-Hudson Conference standings. The Queensborough is not known.

UCCS is one of only two eastern seaboard schools in this week's NJCAA Top 20. The Senators picked up one first-place vote and 24 points overall. Mercer of New Jersey, fourth in a week ago, has slipped to a three-way tie for seventh.

Ulster's utter deflation of Orange Tuesday created some problems for Coach Perry — mainly that of keeping his boys "up" for low rated opponents. Neither Dutchess or Kingsborough falls in that category, however.

Henry Nixon is the team scoring leader going into tonight's game with 409 points and a 17.8 average for 23 games. Jackie Knowles, the playmaker, is second with 15.9 and Coleman Link has 15.9.

Lyle-Quarry Tonight

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ron Lyle, a knockout artist who hits like a sledgehammer, and Jerry Quarry, whose chin has tested the punching power of the best heavyweights over the past eight years, meet in a 12-rounder tonight at Madison Square Garden.

Lyle, who has been a sensation out west in winning 17 of 19 fights by knockouts, makes his Garden debut and if he can make Quarry his 20th victim, a title match with George Foreman could be coming his way in the near future.

Foreman's manager, Dick Salder, has been on the phone to Garden matchmaker, Teddy Brenner, this week to discuss the new champion's future plans. Salder is expected to fly in from California to talk with Brenner and he might arrive in time to watch the Lyle-Quarry brawl.

Joe Frazier, the man Foreman knocked out in the second round last month to win the title, is coming in to see the fight along with his manager Yank Durham.

There has been a lot of interest in this fight and a crowd of better than 15,000 is expected. Since Foreman's upset over Frazier, the heavy-weight division has been given new life and Lyle is the one fighter who can benefit most.

Ranked fourth in the world, and named Fighter of the Year in 1972 by the World Boxing Association, Lyle has moved quickly into the title picture. His last fight, two months ago against fifth-ranked Larry Middleton, ended in three rounds. Other men were counted out sooner. Buster Mathis fell in two, so did Vicente Rondon, former light-heavy-weight champion. Lyle has demolished every man in front of him. The last guy to go 10 rounds with Lyle was Manuel Ramos, back in October of 1971.

The 30-year-old Lyle is in a big hurry to get a shot at Foreman and the champion, who is a man anxious to make up for lost time—time spent in the Colorado State Penitentiary for killing a man in a gang fight 11 years ago. The sentence was 15-25 years but he was out in 7½ thanks to his friend and backer Bill Daniels, the millionaire-owner of the Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association, who spends his free time working with inmates with the hope that he can give them hope.

Daniels' association with Lyle has been a smashing success. It's a story of a bad guy turned good. The only time Ron Lyle had these days is in the ring.

Quarry hasn't been known as such a nice guy either. He's a street fighter who has fought and lost to the best—Muhammad Ali (twice), Frazier, Jimmy Ellis, George Chuvalo, Eddie Machen.

He showed great courage in his bout with Frazier in 1969 before the fight was stopped in the seventh round, with Quarry's face badly carved up. Against Ali, Quarry was cut again and lost in three and then in their second fight, last June, he was humiliated and announced his retirement.

That lasted seven months. Four weeks ago he came back and scored a seventh round technical knockout over Randy Neumann. He was 10 pounds overweight for that fight and he fought sluggishly.

This time Quarry is down to his fighting weight at 200 pounds and trainer Gil Clancy has pronounced him in the "best shape of his life."

Quarry gets $25,000 while Lyle has been guaranteed $15,000. A more lucrative contract awaits the winner.

Anti-Abortion Group Starts Drive Against Supreme Court Decision

FISHKILL, N.Y. (AP) — A letter writing campaign encouraging federal and state officials to counteract the recent Supreme Court ruling legalizing abortion has been initiated by the Dutchess County Right to Life Committee in conjunction with national committee efforts, according to Frank Zanchelli, chairman.

"On Jan. 22, the Supreme Court, in effect, gave the green light to abortions throughout the nine months of pregnancy," Zanchelli noted. "Concerned citizens of every faith musters, just as it did a century ago with its Dred Scott decision, voicing their disapproval to the President, Congress, and the State Legislature."

According to Right To Life Committee, no state controls can now be exercised during the first three months of pregnancy, and a woman can have an abortion anywhere at the hands of any "physician," licensed or not.

During the second trimester, only the conditions under which abortions are performed can be registered, and only in the last 10 weeks can the state require that a woman's life or health be in danger before an abortion can be performed, said Zanchelli, the term "health" covering both mental and physical distress.

The course of action outlined at a recent Dutchess County Bank of Highland, Poughkeepsie for those seeking to return to legislation permitting abortion only to save the life of the mother was stated.

The committee suggested that the Supreme Court be requested to reconsider its ruling; an amendment will be sought securing the Constitution's protection for the unborn from the moment of conception; and, should both these efforts fail, steps will be taken to set up a Constitutional Convention.

Venereal Disease Conference Slate At Paltz College

NEW PALTZ — A regional venereal disease conference will be held March 3 at the State University College at New Paltz, according to Freda Casner, executive director of the Dutchess County Youth Board.

Dutchess, Ulster, Orange, and Sullivan Counties will be represented by a wide range of participants, including physicians, educational personnel, high school and college students, public and private agencies, and interested citizens who are committed to solving the rampant problem of VD.

The extent of this problem is made clear in a New York State Department of Health publication "Report on Venereal Diseases." According to this source in 1971, the last full year for which figures were published, Dutchess County led all counties in New York State (New York City not reported) in the incidence rate (number of reported cases per 100,000 population) of syphilis; it was also among the leaders in the incidence of gonorrhea.

The conference is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. with attendance registration in the new College Union Building, Route 325. Four speakers will follow at 9:30. All have experience at the state government level and will speak on VD from different viewpoints.

Dr. Alan R. Hinman, Assistant Commissioner of the State Department of Health, will discuss the magnitude of the problem and present methods of treatment in "VD — A current plague."

Dolores R. Floss will answer the question "How can county agencies work together to meet this problem?" She is Executive Director of the New York State Interagency Council on Health Problems.

Dr. John S. Sinacore, Special Assistant to the Commissioner, Health and Drug Education, Division of the State Education Department, will describe "Approaches to Teaching About VD."

And Dr. Ross E. Gutman will speak on the "Role of School Pupil Personnel Services" in helping to stem this epidemic. He is with the Division of Pupil Personnel Services of the State Education Department.

Following speakers, representatives from each county will react to a point brought up by one of the speakers. Participating as reactors from Dutchess County will be Father Sal Mistretta, St. Margaret's Church, Staatsburg; Dr. Irving Dreishpoon, chairman of the Medical Advisory Committee of Planned Parenthood League of Dutchess County, and Mrs. Nancy Rosen, Investigator for the Department of Public Health.

Audience participation will be invited until 11 a.m. when the general meeting will break into individual county meetings.

The purpose of each county meeting will be to answer the questions: What services are presently available in our county to counteract VD? What can be done to improve these services?

The afternoon will see the general meeting reconvene and county contingents exchanging ideas. It is scheduled to begin at 12:30 p.m. and adjourn at 2:15 p.m.

The conference is sponsored by the Mid-Hudson Regional Compact, Office of Educational Planning, a state education planning agency.

Set Closings For Holidays

KINGSTON — Dual Monday holidays are in the near future for some governmental employees while others will have just one long February weekend.

Both the Ulster County Office Building and Kingston City Hall will be closed Feb. 12 and Feb. 19. This Monday's closing is in observance of Lincoln's Birthday while the Feb. 19 closing will be in observance of Washington's Birthday under the relatively new Monday legal holiday plan.

The sheriff's department will be open both Mondays.

The Kingston Post Office and its stations will be open as usual Monday, Feb. 12 but will close Monday, Feb. 19. Lobby hours for the Washington's Birthday closing will be 8 to 10 a.m. at the Uptown Station and 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. at the Main Post Office.

Refuse collections in Kingston will be one day late for the next two weeks due to the holiday observances. The Kingston Landfill will be closed both Mondays but will remain open both Saturdays from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m.

There will be no Ulster County Chest Clinic on Feb. 12 or 19.

Schools will be open this Monday but will close Feb. 19 for the Washington's Birthday long weekend.

Eight-Point Party Platform Submitted by County Dems

KINGSTON — The establishment of a Board of Social Services, the already existing manpower field to augment the further expansion of the the abolition of the coroner system.

An eight-point platform including a "outreach program for the elderly," the establishment of a county fire marshal's department and the creation of an economic advisory council was presented the Ulster County Legislature Thursday night by Minority Leader Dr. Gerald P. Gorman in behalf of the nine Democratic members of the Legislature.

Dr. Gorman (D-City) recalled that three prior proposals of his party in the 1971 and 1972 platforms have come to fruition including the establishment of an Environmental Control Board, a County Traffic Safety Board and the Ulster County Drug Commission.

In outlining the 1973 program, Dr. Gorman suggested the following:

- The establishment of a Board of Social Services. He said he envisions the board as being generally similar to the present Board of Health and it would be made up of qualified citizens to give guidance and advice to the many wide-ranging social service activities and needs of the county and would be in a position to conceive, consider and carry out the reforms "that are to occur at every level in the years ahead."
- Create an Economic Advisory Council which would work in conjunction with the Finance Committee and develop a five-year plan of expenditures for the Legislature. The council would be made up of heads of major businesses in the Hudson Valley. A secondary benefit, Dr. Gorman said, would be in the manpower field to augment the already existing manpower acts, particularly involving the private sector.
- Establish a council for the minority. A perennial request of the Democrats, Dr. Gorman again urged immediate establishment of such a position.
- Accelerate plans for the Recreational Department, urging rapid development of the 92-acre St. George's Camp and the 145-acre county farm. "We continue to urge the rapid development of these sites and continued emphasis on the future development of public golf courses, marinas, swimming facilities and public parks and campsites for the future use of county residents," Dr. Gorman said.
- Establish an outreach program for the elderly. Dr. Gorman said his party believes that the further expansion of the Ulster County Infirmity is inevitable and necessary and it recommended a 300-bed facility. "We believe the establishment of an outreach program for the elderly, whereby the Health Department nurses expand their visits to the elderly in their homes and administer to their needs is advisable," he said. Dr. Gorman also said he wished to publicly recognize the excellent job that is now being done by the Nursing Division of the Health Department.

• Establish a medical examiner system in Ulster County. Also a perennial part of the Democratic program, Dr. Gorman said, "we feel this office would serve a vital function to protect the needs of all its citizens and we will continue for

PLAN SPEECH — Mrs. Maureen Graham supervisor of the Children's Division, Ulster County Division of Social Services (L), and Mrs. Gladys Moon, program chairman of the Council of Social Agencies, discuss a speech Mrs. Graham will deliver before the Council on Tuesday, Feb. 13. Mrs. Graham, who has worked for 13 years in the child welfare field, will speak on the problems of local children from the viewpoint of the Department of Social Services. The public is invited and reservations for the luncheon may be made at the YWCA, where the program begins at noon. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Pickets Mar Opening of Paltz Carrols

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ — The Carrols hamburger stand opened for business in New Paltz Thursday, and was promptly picketed by the group known as the Citizens for a Better Community.

The CBC stood in front of the new restaurant wearing placards with such explicit messages as "Don't Eat Here," and "Don't Eat At Carrols." They also distributed leaflets to those who would take them.

According to the CBC leaflet, the purpose of a boycott of Carrols would be to "demonstrate to Carrols disapproval of their untruthful, insensitive, and disrespectful conduct."

Carrols in New Paltz has had a stormy history, including some community disapproval, an unsuccessful attempt by the village board to condemn the Carrols site for a park, and heavy vandalism.

While the New Paltz Carrols was being constructed, it suffered more vandalism than any Carrols anywhere, according to a high Carrols official. The vandalism tapered off after it was publicized that a local contractor, and not Carrols, was paying for most of the results of the vandalism.

Mike Stamm was in charge of the CBC pickets during the noon hour, and he almost got arrested.

Village Patrolmen Charles Davis and Anthony Oneta responded to a call from New Paltz Carrols manager Terry Murphy, who wanted to charge Stamm with trespassing.

Murphy complained that Stamm had come into Carrols property to tell people not to go into the restaurant, and that the pickets were walking on the freshly seeded lawn.

Stamm said he told no one specifically to go away, and apologized for walking on the lawn. The lawn is heavily mulched, and Stamm said he didn't know there was seed on it. He also felt he was within the law going onto Carrols property to distribute leaflets until he was told not to.

Murphy said he would not sign the complaint against the pickets if they would just stay off Carrols property, not "harass" the patrons, and not block traffic. The pickets property to tell people not to go into the restaurant, and that Murphy even offered the picketers a cup of coffee. "It's on the house," said Murphy, "it's cold out here." The picketers did not take him up on the offer, and continued their demonstration in the cold and snow.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

DATE TROUBLE: (Q) I was 16 when I first started dating. I didn't have many dates and they didn't go very well. I was scared of what might happen, and I didn't know what to do in case it did.
When I didn't have a date for a while my mother would reassure me. She would say, "You're young and don't need a man, so don't worry." I got to believing that, and quit trying to be nice to boys.
Now I am 18 and when I have a date I pick the guy apart. If he starts getting serious I turn him off quick. Also, if he isn't the kind of boy mother would like I don't date him again.
I know all this is hurting me, but I still do it. I know I do need someone to love and to love me, but I keep pushing them away. I blame my mother. I think she is glad when I don't have a date or when a boy quits dating me. What do you think?—In Need in Texas.
(A) I think you have run into a long series of mediocre boys. I think you are picky and choosy because that is your nature. In looking go by your own preferences, not those of your mother or anyone else.
Do be friendly to the boys you date. Do give them and yourself a reasonable chance to become better acquainted. When you get a job or go to college, consider moving to an apartment of your own or with another girl. This should help you in your search.
MARRIAGE: (Q) I met this boy when I was down at my girl friend's house. He is from Italy. He has been in America for just a year.
He is very nice except for one thing. He thinks he loves me. I like him pretty much, but I am worried. I have heard that in Italy they marry early. He is 15 and I am 14. I only went out with him once.—Wondering in Pennsylvania.
(A) On the basis of one date, I believe you are assuming too much. I don't think the boy is planning to ask you to marry him. If he does, say no.

A Chat With Rich Little

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Rich Little gained a measure of fame by doing uncannily accurate vocal impressions of such folk as John Wayne, President Nixon and Ed Sullivan. It's caused him a few problems.

One involves little people, usually between the ages of nine and 10. They stomp up to him and insist on doing their impressions. Another problem occurs when he speaks in his own voice.

He keeps getting asked, "Who are you doing now?" Little, in town to do a voice or two on ABC's Jack Paar show, talked about the performing life and related matters during a hurried dinner at a big hotel here.

"I'm like the piano player," he mildly grouched. "Wherever I go, people are always wanting me to get up and perform, even on the street."

"It's just lately that when I'm on the road that a lot of kids who are studying impressions come into the dressing room and go through their routines."

"There was a 10-year-old in Oklahoma I remember well. He came in and opened with Ronald Colman. Then he went into his Ed Sullivan—eight minutes of introductions—and then went into Walter Pidgeon, another one of his favorites."

How does Little deal with these verbal urchins? "I never criticize them," he said. "They're too young for that. I picture myself at their age and I used to do what they do, too."

Little, a regular on ABC's "Julie Andrews Show" and a fair actor and singer when he isn't doing voices, was born in Ottawa, Canada. He got into show business because of his classmates in school — they cheered his impressions of their teachers.

His first engagement was at a club in a Quebec mining town. The job paid $15 and the patrons paid no attention.

"Not only did they not react, but they didn't speak English," he said. "It's a wonder I didn't get into aluminum siding right then."

As the years went on, his fame grew and so did the voices in his repertoire — he now can do about 125. Singer Mel Torme got him his first big break in U.S. television in 1964. But his real start in America began with his first engagement at a night club in St. Petersburg, Fla. He warmed up the audience for the headliner, Joan Fairfax and Her All-Girl Orchestra.

He admits to being a basket case when he first went on. He also recalled doing Ronald Colman and Walter Pidgeon, "Nothing too much," Little said. "I went into my room and cried and worked on my Walter Pidgeon."

Too often we are focused on protecting the right of the individual in an effort to society that we sometimes tend to lose sight of our paramount responsibility—to protect society itself.—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York.

Kissinger Heads for Three-Day Hanoi Visit

BANGKOK (UPI) — Presidential advisor Henry A. Kissinger started a tour of Asia that will take him to Hanoi and Peking today by conferring with Thai officials on Indochina cease-fire developments — the subject dominating his entire trip.

Kissinger planned to spend Saturday, Sunday and Monday in Hanoi in the first visit to the North Vietnamese capital by an American official in nearly two decades. He then will go to Peking for consultations with Premier Chou En-lai.

Nixon administration spokesman said Washington hoped Kissinger's talks in Hanoi would allow U.S.-North Vietnamese relations to move from hostility to normalization.

Of his talks in Bangkok, Deputy Foreign Minister Chartchai Choonhawan said the main topics were the Vietnam peace agreement and a pending Laotian cease-fire.

Kissinger also conferred with the U.S. ambassadors to Laos, Cambodia, South Vietnam and Thailand.

Chartchai said Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn and Kissinger exchanged views on the (Vietnam) cease-fire.

"We discussed the general situation in Cambodia, Laos, Vietnam and Thailand in order to understand all the developments," said Chartchai. "We talked about the cease-fire in Laos which will take place soon and about his trip to Hanoi and Peking."

Government sources said Thailand asked Kissinger for details of the cease-fire arrangements in Vietnam, especially those verbally agreed to but not out into writing.

Officials said Thailand is concerned about the Laos cease-fire, expected to go into effect this weekend, because of Thailand's close association with the government in Vietnam.

"No doubt once a cease-fire is achieved, the insurgency problem on our border with Laos will become less serious," the official said. "But we have taken sides with the government and we fear once Laotian sides settle their differences we will be pushed out."

Thailand has about 11 battalions of troops fighting with Laotian government troops against Communist forces. The official said the Laotian government will decide when to send the Thais home.

Agnew on Way With Guarded Optimism

MANILA (UPI) — Vice President Spiro Agnew ended an eight-nation Southeast Asian tour today, voicing guarded optimism that there will be no more Vietnam war and carrying to President Nixon "secret information" on Southeast Asian security.

Manila was the last stop for Agnew, dispatched by Nixon to brief governments on the U.S. role in postwar Southeast Asia. He spent 4½ hours in Manila, then left aboard his blue and white Air Force jet at 4:05 p.m.

(3:05 a.m. EST) for a brief refueling stop at Guam before flying back to the United States.

"After completing my tour of eight nations," Agnew said at a Malacanang Palace lunch with President Ferdinand E. Marcos and key cabinet members, "I am quite optimistic that we will not resume those unproductive hostilities that enervated and dissipated so much in the way of blood and assets of all of us."

Agnew warned, however, that the cease-fire in Vietnam is a "tenuous" one and said it can either "blossom into a legitimate realization of the aspirations of a people who have been at war for almost 20 years" or "suddenly erode in misunderstanding that would again catapult the world into a resumption of the turmoil and sufferings it has experienced."

Then he added: "I think we finally learned that people can live together in peace if they have real motivation to understand and compromise with one another."

Acting Information Secretary

Adrian Cristobal told newsmen that Marcos and Agnew met in private for about one hour before and after the luncheon.

"The president transmitted to the vice president secret information on immediate short-range and long-range security problems in Southeast Asia," Cristobal said. He gave no further details.

Despite the prospects for a lasting peace in Vietnam, Agnew cautioned: "I cannot lose sight of the fact that there are dangers inherent in an accommodation that must be guarded against. Nations must remember to respect traditional alliances and friendships."

Agnew, the first high American official to visit the Philippines since Marcos proclaimed martial law Sept. 23, said the United States is watching "with interest" developments in the aftermath of the decree.

In a statement issued before his departure, Agnew said "I reaffirm the intention of the United States to meet its treaty commitments in the area in general and to the Philippines in particular."

A government spokesman said earlier the private Agnew-Marcos talks would include events that led to the martial law proclamation and developments since then.

Rogers Puts It on The Line

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers has asserted Congress will have to play a key role if the United States is to make "an investment in peace" by participating in the reconstruction and rehabilitation of Indochina.

"We will consult with Congress quite closely," Rogers said in an appearance Thursday before the House Foreign Affairs Committee. "Quite obviously, we can't do this without congressional support."

Rogers said the foreign ministers conference on Vietnam, which convenes in Paris Feb. 26, may take the first steps in developing an Indochina reconstruction program. But he stressed that the United States so far has made no commitments on rebuilding either North or South Vietnam. The subject will be discussed by Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's negotiator, when he meets with North Vietnamese leaders in Hanoi starting Saturday.

But it was evident at the hearing there is congressional opposition to the reconstruction program. Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., told Rogers he would find it hard to vote for aid to either Hanoi or Saigon when the administration had cancelled 100 significant domestic programs.

Rogers said the United States would like to promote a multilateral program which would include Japan and other world powers in a cooperative effort to rebuild Cambodia, Laos, South Vietnam and North Vietnam.

The secretary said he expected Japan to play a "very major role." He said he doubted the Soviet Union or China would join the Western effort, which may be directed by the United Nations and the World Bank.

Rogers described the reconstruction program in Nixon's words as "an investment in peace," saying that nations which are rebuilding are less likely to engage in military hostilities.

During the Paris peace negotiations, the United States tentatively proposed a $7.5 billion reconstruction program over a 5-year period for Indochina.

Last Pilot Shot Down

By The Associated Press

The thousands who thrilled to Navy Cmdr. Harley Hall's aerial feats with the Blue Angels precision flying team were 10,000 miles away when he parachuted into an enemy jungle on Jan. 27 and became the last American pilot shot down in the Vietnam war.

A Pentagon spokesman said Hall was the last Navy pilot to be shot down before the cease-fire agreement ended America's longest war.

But his wingman returned to the aircraft carrier Enterprise and reported he saw the flyer and his copilot "alive and on the ground and functioning," said Hall's wife, Mary Lou, in San Diego, Calif.

Hall, 35, and radar intercept officer Lt. Cmdr. Phillip A. Kientzlar were listed as missing in action after they bailed out over Quang Tri Province, South Vietnam, on Jan. 27 — the day the cease-fire went into effect.

"He's one of the finest officers we have in the Navy today," retired Vice Adm. Bernard M. Stiepan said Thursday in Washington.

"He's all Navy, one of the most outstanding pilots in the military and a young man with a long way to go," said Stiepan, retired chief of Naval Air Training and Hall's former superior. "I knew that when we selected him for the Blue Angels, and I'm even more convinced of his caliber today."

A native of Vancouver, Wash., Hall was selected over 2,000 Navy pilots to head the flying showcase in November 1969.

He took the glamour job following a three-year stint in

The lawyer called the less than honorable discharge was "the least favorable action" that could be rendered without a court-martial.

"In effect, it labels a person as guilty of personal, professional or moral dereliction," Karparkin said.

He said it was undecided whether they would appeal the discharge within the military or go into a civilian court.

Heck had been charged by the Air Force of refusing to fly a Dec. 27 bombing mission over North Vietnam.
